Partnership in the Gospel

Philippians 1

Paul wrote lots of letters to the churches he started all over the world. His letter to the people in Philippi is often called his "Rejoicing Letter" because he tells the people over and over how happy he is with them and their faith. To "rejoice" means to feel joy! The Philippians made Paul very, very joyful.

"I thank God every time I think of you," he wrote, "and I pray with joy for all of you, because of how you believe in Jesus and act in good ways. I pray that your love overflow more and more, and that you learn more and more about God and Jesus. The more people share about Jesus, the more I rejoice!"
